To whom it may concern

I would like to point out (in my opinion) smaller Local Authority Area's would have the an outcome that would seriously disadvantage Independent candidates in running for local elections against the larger parties who will have the finance, structure and ability to run more candidates in an area with the home of picking up transfers from each-other thus having the knock-on effect of squeezing out the smaller parties & independents.

Thus Smaller EAs will impact unfavourably on the democratic outcome for the large number of independent voters out there.

Kind Regards

Thomas
